MOOT PROBLEM

Mithila is a state of the Indian Union which is located on the eastern part of the nation. The state is among the top 3 states in the production of rice and hence its economy is vastly dependent on agriculture. The state receives ample amount of rain during the monsoon season which favours the growth of paddy and moreover the land is highly fertile owing to the high deposit of silt and alluvium brought down by the river Padma which originates in the Sindukush Range in the north.

This state is one of the most politically sensitive states with frequent political clashes between the different political parties. In 2008, the Socialist Party of India, a party inclined towards communist ideology came to power following the Legislative Assembly elections for the 7th consecutive time. Mr. Gautamdev Pandit was elected as the Chief Minister for the second time and in his maiden speech after swearing in as the Chief Minister for the second time he emphasized on the fact that the state of Mithila although quite stable in agricultural sector, needs a boost in the industrial field as was promised in the election manifesto. He gave an open invitation to the corporate houses to come and setup industries in the state to boost the economy of the state which was not in a good shape.

Meanwhile, the Sparta India Pvt. Ltd which was an industrial giant of India announced that they would soon launch a new and affordable car called the "Sparta Giano" which according to them would revolutionalize the Indian automobile sector. The Chairman of the Sparta Group, Mr. Sudeep Sparta, in an interview said that they were looking for an ideal location to setup the "Giano" plant and they are open for any offer for the same. Mr. Gautamdev Pandit welcomed the Sparta Group to the state of Mithila and promised them that the state has the ideal infrastructure and workforce to make the project a success. After a long series of talks between the State Government & Sparta officials, finally a site was selected for the setup of the plant in the state.

In a joint press conference Mr. Pandit and Mr. Sparta said that they have decided to setup the plant in Bangur, well connected through the national highway to state capital which is 20 kilometers away from it. It was said that the state government would acquire 950 acres of agricultural land on behalf of Sparta Group and the Sparta Group shall provide compensation and employment to the families of the farmers whose lands would be acquired. Bangur is located in the district of Srirampur. It is known to be one of the most fertile areas of the country. The quantum of paddy produced there is so high that it earned the reputation of being styled as the rice bowl of Mithila. The news of land acquisition became viral, resulting in violent protests across Bangur as majority of the farmers refused to give away their land.

The Federal Party of India which was the main opposition party espoused the cause of the farmers who were against the land acquisition. Ms. Seema Thakur who was the leader of opposition organizing violent protests and dharnas all across the state warned the government of a mass agitation if it went ahead with its plan of acquisition. The Sparta officials who came to inspect the land were driven away by the local people with backup support of the Federal Party. But the government being hell bent on acquiring the land, using massive police force which resorted to lathi charge, tear gas and water canon acquired the land in October, 2008 and handed it over to the Sparta Group.

Without wasting any time, The Sparta Group began the construction work of the Giano plant and by August 2009 the plant was ready to undergo production. Meanwhile, Ms. Seema Thakur, continuing her allegation on the state government of foul play and forcible acquisition, organized a sit in protest just outside the gates of the plant. The sit in protest which continued for two long months ultimately forced the Sparta Group to withdraw their project from the site although they did not part with the ownership of the land. The Federal Party taking it as their moral victory promised that if they were voted to power in the next assembly election, they would certainly return the lands which was around 400 acres to the unwilling farmers and utilize the rest of the land for some other purposes beneficial to the people.

Owing to high anti-incumbency wave, the Federal Party of India was voted to power in the Assembly Elections of 2013 and Ms. Seema Thakur became the Chief Minister of the state. Acting promptly on the promise made before the election, in the first cabinet meeting of the state it was agreed that a law would be made to acquire 950 acres of land in Bangur and hand over 400 acres back to the unwilling farmers and utilize the rest for other purposes.

The State Government in its first Assembly Session introduced the Bangur Land Rehabilitation and Development Bill, 2013 and passed it in the same session amidst huge protest from the opposition party. The Governor of Mithila assented to the bill which came into force from 1st November 2013. The primary object of the Act was to acquire the land from the Sparta Group and return 400 acres land to the unwilling farmers from whom earlier the land was acquired and utilize the rest for some purpose beneficial to the people. The Act does not contemplate any clear provision regarding the compensation to be paid to the Sparta Group, but only states that the money paid by the vendors shall be refunded to the Sparta group.

Soon after the enactment of the Act, the State Government took possession of the 950 acres of land from the Sparta group. The Sparta Group immediately challenged the constitutional validity of the Act in the High Court of Mithila as violative of Article 14 of the Constitution of India on the ground that the Act failed to answer the test of reasonable classification. A Single Judge Bench upheld the constitutional validity of the Act. Further, it was held that the provision of the Act pertaining to compensation is vague and uncertain and that it be suitably amended to incorporate a concrete provision regarding the same. Being aggrieved by the judgment the Sparta Group filed an appeal in the division bench of the High Court of Mithila which declared the Act to be "unconstitutional and void".

The Division Bench held that this Act on "land acquisition" is a concurrent subject and some provisions of the law are in conflict with Central Land Acquisition, Rehabilitation and Resettlement Act, 2013 as no proper Social Impact Assessment or Environmental Impact Assessment clause is found in the impugned Act which is essential in case of any land acquisition as per the aforesaid Central Act that it comes under its shadow. In addition to that it was also held that the said Act did not contain any concrete criteria to determine the issue of public purpose which is an essential requirement as returning of land to the "unwilling" farmers or landowners was not a public purpose. The Act was held violative of Article 14 of the Constitution of India as it failed to satisfy the test of reasonable classification and intelligible differentia. The bench also observed that the state government has not sought the assent of the President of India which according to it is necessary for such an Act. Further the High Court of Mithila observed that there was only a mention of the term "refund" in the Act and no clear cut compensation scheme was provided.

Aggrieved by the decision of the High Court of Mithila, the State Government preferred an appeal to the Supreme Court of India. The Supreme Court of India admitted the appeal and listed it for final hearing framing the following issues:

1. Whether the Bangur Land Rehabilitation and Development Act, 2013 is violative of Article 14 of the Constitution of India?
2. Whether the consent of the President of India was essential for the Bangur Land Rehabilitation and Development Bill, 2013?
3. Whether the absence of Social Impact Assessment clause renders the Bangur Land Rehabilitation and Development Act, 2013 repugnant to the Central Land Acquisition, Rehabilitation and Resettlement Act, 2013?
4. Whether the acquisition of land under the Bangur Land Rehabilitation and Development Act, 2013 fulfills the criteria of "public purpose" as mentioned in the Central Land Acquisition, Rehabilitation and Resettlement Act, 2013?
5. Whether the "refund clause" mentioned in the Bangur Land Rehabilitation and Development Act, 2013 is legally valid?

Note:

a. The Bangur Land Rehabilitation and Development Act, 2013 is pari materia with the Singur Land Rehabilitation and Development Act, 2011.
b. The teams may frame any other relevant issue.
