Commentary

Prosus is a global technology company building AI-powered ecosystems across Delivery, Finance and Experiences in Latin America (LatAm), Europe and India. We are investing to build interconnected digital products that serve everyday life. Our conviction is simple: every product achieves more inside the ecosystem than it ever could alone.

Over the past six months, adjusted earnings (previously core headline earnings)[2] per share grew 12%, driven by the profitability of our equity accounted investments, primarily Tencent, partly offset by our investment in Just Eat Takeaway.com (JET) and iFood. This growth was enhanced by our continuing share-repurchase programme.

Continued innovation is key to sustaining growth. During the period, we expanded our capabilities across our three-layer knowledge stack: our Commerce models enable us to serve AI up to 40 times cheaper than using commercial models. Today we generate 20 trillion tokens per month at a cost and quality that is a competitive advantage for Prosus. Toqan, our agentic platform: Internally it enables all 40 000 Prosus employees to operate using optimised and shared AI agents; externally we deployed it to more than 100 000 restaurants, and we will deploy it to all our partners. AI assistants: Our assistants connect our ecosystems to 10 million of our customers and power commerce across them.

This integrated approach strengthens our competitive advantage in AI-enhanced commerce across our regional ecosystems. Our priority is deploying these capabilities within our own businesses and our partner network.

Our investments in AI are driving commerce across our businesses, from iFood to OLX to PayU and, most recently, we are bringing that technology to Europe to accelerate the transformation of JET. With our core businesses growing profitably, we chose to invest in JET and iFood to strengthen our food ecosystem for the long term. While that weighs on near-term profitability and cash flow, it is the right choice for sustainable growth.
