by any group of persons to such participation must be declared punishable and such action on their part being untenable and liable to be quashed.

2. The principal grievance which is projected as a social cause by the petitioner appears to be that certain sections of women, especially widows, are not allowed to perform the rituals of “Karwa Chauth”, therefore, a law be promulgated making it compulsory for all women, without any discrimination, to perform “Karwa Chauth” rituals and in case of default, the act of default should be made punishable.

3. The said subject falls within the exclusive domain of the legislature and this Court, therefore, declines interference in the present matter.

4. At this juncture, learned counsel for the petitioner prays for withdrawal of this petition.

5. Dismissed as withdrawn with a token costs of Rs. 1,000/- to be deposited by the petitioner with the Poor Patient Welfare Fund, PGIMER, Chandigarh.
