This Summit is designed as an outreach of the 'WTO Young Trade Leaders Program' and aims to foster global trade awareness and career opportunities for young professionals.

To build momentum and set the stage for the official Summit launch, a One-Day Pre-Summit International Colloquium on 'Global Trade Careers, The WTO's 30-Year Legacy, and Future Pathways' is planned for February 6, 2026. This Colloquium aims to bring together students, research scholars, academics, and trade practitioners for substantive engagement on emerging opportunities, skills, and professional trajectories in the field of international trade law and policy.

STRUCTURE OF THE INTERNATIONAL COLLOQUIUM

1. Meet the Young Trade Leader: A Conversation with Ms. Aarushi Shrivastav

2. Panel Discussion: Global Trade Careers, The WTO's Institutional Evolution, and Beyond

This panel will convene leading trade experts, practitioners and young trade enthusiasts to explore two critical areas: The evolution of international trade law and policy over the past three decades, and the WTO's institutional role and transformation since its establishment. The discussion will also delve into the impact of international trade policy on global economics and development, offering clear pathways and opportunities for careers in international trade law and policy. In brief, it aims to explore the opportunities and challenges shaping the future of global trade careers.

3. Official Release: Launch of the WTO@30 Summit Brochure

It will culminate in the formal release of the detailed Summit brochure and dedicated webpage for the WTO@30 Summit (October 2-4, 2026). This Summit will bring together scholars, practitioners, policymakers, and other key stakeholders to examine the pressing challenges and emerging opportunities for meaningful reform of the multilateral trading system, with a particular focus on the role of youth in shaping this process.

KEY SUMMIT HIGHLIGHTS

The Summit will include technical sessions for research paper presentations and a panel discussion covering key thematic areas such as digital trade and data governance, sustainable development, institutional reforms, and trade & competition policy.

The Summit will host a Mock WTO Simulation (the first time in India), offering students and young professionals hands-on experience in multilateral trade diplomacy through negotiations and resolution drafting. To provide participants with a broader understanding of trade negotiations and related strategies, a certificate program will also be organised for all registered participants of the summit prior to the day of the Mock WTO Simulation.

Members from trade lab clinics will be invited to join, along with registered participants. The purpose of this colloquium also includes the establishment of the International Network for Trade Advocacy, Development & Research (IN-TADR), a dedicated platform designed to advance advocacy, capacity development, and high-quality research in the field of international trade law and set the stage for the official
