About CENTRE FOR TAX LAWS

The Centre for Tax Laws at National Law University Delhi was established in 2018 to facilitate research and policy interventions in the area of tax laws. We aim to bring together academia, industry, and government through conferences, certificate courses, workshops, and publications, while creating a pool of experts to analyze and reform tax laws at both national and international levels. The Centre also promotes original tax law scholarship and other scholarly research through its flagship call for papers, providing a platform for students, researchers, and practitioners to contribute meaningful work to contemporary tax discourse.

About the course

This certificate course on Direct and Indirect Tax is a unique academic initiative organised by the Centre for Tax Laws, National Law University Delhi, in collaboration with Khaitan & Co Designed as a practice-oriented programme, the course seeks to bridge the gap between academic learning and the realities of commercial tax practice.

Scheduled for 3rd–4th April, the two-day programme will feature lectures and interactive discussions led by leading practitioners from Khaitan & Co's tax team. The course is structured to provide participants with a foundational understanding of both indirect and direct taxation.

The programme will emphasise interactive learning, including a group-based case study exercise based on contemporary tax disputes currently pending before Indian courts.

The course is open to all undergraduate and LL.M. students. Participants will receive curated reading material in advance and a certificate upon successful completion of the programme. Additionally, high-performing participants may be considered for prospective internship opportunities.
